The Virago Book of Ghost Stories combines two of my reading passions. First, of course, there are the ghost stories themselves, and these are, as Richard Dalby states in his preface, "arranged in chronological order," making for a great way to watch the development of the "form of the ghost story" over the last 150 years.

Looking for a spooky story to get you in the mood for All Hallow's Eve? Here are just a few suggestions in our Halloween reading list. Rebecca, Daphne du Maurier. With one of the most famous first lines in literature, Daphne du Maurier's Rebecca has all of the elements that make for a chilling tale, so much so that Alfred Hitchcock adapted the novel for the big screen.

Virago Modern Classics are "dedicated to the celebration of women writers and to the rediscovery and reprinting of their works. Its aim was, and is, to demonstrate the existence of a female tradition in literature, and to broaden the sometimes narrow definition of a 'classic', which has often led to the neglect of interesting books."

This competition is now closed. Read the winning story here. In October, we publish four of Daphne du Maurier's short story collections in brand new Virago Modern Classic jackets, so to celebrate the queen of the gothic short story, we were very excited to announce a brand new short story competition with Stylist magazine.
