Unspeakable Practices, Unnatural Acts. by. Donald Barthelme, Harry Bennett (Cover Artist) 3.86 · Rating details · 415 ratings · 51 reviews. "Fragments are the only forms I trust" is one fat clue the reader might net as to the run of the current in these strange, witty, surreal short stories. At first bewildered glance, each piece seems a montage of floating, congruent, non-congruent, time-dandling events, words, things; a montage of meaningless (for the moment) souvenirs.

In 1964, he began to publish short stories collections beginning with Come Back, Dr. Caligari in 1964, followed by Unspeakable Practices, Unnatural Acts (1968) and City Life (1970). Time magazine named City Life one of the best books of the year and described the collection as written with "Kafka's purity of language and some of Beckett's grim humor." His formal originality can be seen in his fresh handling of the parodic dramatic monologue in "The School" or a list of one hundred numbered ...
